INTERIOR VIEW OF THE GREAT WAINIHA ELECTRIC POWER PLANT

These mighty water wheels manufacture power which drives immense sugar machinery and big a distance of nearly a hundred miles.

We left Hanalei about eight o'clock A. M., and after a travel of an hour or more over beautiful mountains and fertile valleys, we dropped down the mountain side into Wainiha, a pretty little village almost hidden in tropical foliage, and reposing on the banks of a winding river, and hard by an expansive sandy beach. Peeping out from groves of palm trees are pretty houses surrounded by a profusion of tropical flowers and here and there we are greeted by groups of youngsters who retreat at our approach.

The village sports several general merchandise shops and a post-office. About a mile up the valley we come to the Wainiha Electric Power Station. Here it is, that power is generated by immense water wheels, in sufficient quantity to run sugar mill machinery in the McBryde Co's mill, a distance of probably seventy-five miles, as well as to furnish the motive power necessary to run the immense electric elevators which are used in loading sugar onto the American Hawaiian ships. Various pumps, in the same vicinity we understand, also get their power from this source.

The power house is situated at the foot of the mountain, the water being conveyed to the water wheels through an eighteen-in. pipe which extends down the mountain side from directly above. The power once generated, immediately finds its way through innumerable wires and tubes, finally emerging from the building, on its mad course, to freedom, it is forced to do some trapez work after which it proceeds over three large copper wires to its destiny, miles away.

The inside of this great power plant proves very interesting indeed. Great water wheels incased in steel jackets are revolving with such velocity as to churn the on-rushing water into a snowy-white foam. From the wheels the water is thrown thirty or forty feet after which it falls into a small lake and loses itself in a beautiful brook.

Manager Menefoglio most charmingly entertained us, giving details which proved both interesting and valuable. He has a beautiful home and is making a success at vegetable gardening, while Mrs. Menefoglio is meeting with unbounded success in the poultry line. We found Mr. and Mrs. Menefoglio to be such delightful entertainers that we shall not soon forget the very enjoyable and much too short visit we paid their hospitable home.

The Gomes Brothers, who have been with the company for several years, are men of efficiency and the extreme care necessary to avoid even the slightest touch of many of the hamless appearing little wires, whose touch would mean almost instant death, has become a second nature to them. Like Manager Menefoglio, they each have comfortable homes, where despite the apparent isolation, they seem to be very happy and contented.

Besides the inside electricians, there is a force of several men constantly working on repairs in a well equipped machine shop near by and along the entire line extending from the power house to McBryde, telephone stations are established, each of which is in charge of one or more linemen whose duty it is to report and repair any pilikia along his section. By this means Mr. Menefoglio can keep in constant touch with every single yard of this great line of invisible but mighty power.

Dr. Derby arrived in Koloa yesterday and will probably remain until Monday next where he expects to arrive in Lihue.

SCHOOLS RUNNING IN FULL BLAST

The public schools throughout the island opened their doors yesterday morning and the tinkle tinkle of the bells signaled the commencement of another year in which let us hope, much more will be accomplished than in any previous year. Parents should awaken to the fact that much of the success in the child's studies depends on the interest taken in his daily work by the parents. They should find time to visit the school, to meet the teacher, and to familiarize themselves with school conditions. Visitors are always welcome, in fact the teachers are delighted to have them. The following enrollments were wired into us last night:

School	No. Pupils
Kilauea	153
Anahola	48
Hanamaulu	187
Lihue	286
Kalaheo	113
Hanapepe	311

The first day's attendance, however, should not be taken as a criterion, for, strange as it may seem, as a general rule the first few days of the term, find more absentees than at any other time

KAUAI STUDENTS OFF TO SCHOOL

Saturday's Kinau was loaded to the beam, being in most part filled with Kauai students returning to the various schools in Honolulu. Willie Werner, Miss Elizabeth Werner, Miss Kahau Kaiawe and Hatsuji Yamamoto being Hanalei representatives in the Honolulu Normal; Misses Eva and Helen Akana represent Kalihiwai in the same school, while Misses Amy and Julia Mahikoa, and Masters Willie Mahikoa, and Johnny Achong, represent Kalihiwai in Kamelameha. Misses Hannah Jacobson and Alice Ai are Lihue representatives at the Normal, while the Misses Grotes are enrolled with special schools. Miss Purvis, is a Punahou student and was accompanied by her father. Miss Schimmelpfennig, of Koloa was another bright Kauai girl among the Normal class.

Miss Ethel Edwards is one of the Kilauea teachers this year.

Mrs. Stephen Wing, of San Francisco, aunt to Mrs. Chamberlain of Kilauea, accompanied the latter on her recent return trip from the States, and will be the guest of Mrs. Chamberlain for some time

Waimea Landing Experiences Rough Time On Kinau's Last Visit - 60 Bags of Sugar Are Lost

(Special to the Garden Island)

HANAPEPE, September 10.—Mrs. H. H. Brodie, wife of Supervising Principal H. H. Brodie, met with a painful accident last week. It seems that Mrs. Brodie was superintending a white-washing job on an out-building, when in stepping onto a loose plank, she was thrown to the ground in such a manner as to fall with her entire weight upon her left arm, breaking the wrist bone a little ways above the hand. Dr. West was called, and as the break was free from splinters, soon had his patient resting comfortably.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Brodie had the misfortune some time ago, to break her right arm while on a trip abroad and the present accident would appear to be more than her share of misfortune.

PROMINENT KILAUEA PEOPLE TO THE COAST ON VACATION

KILAUEA, Sept. 12.—Manager Jack Myers of the Kilauea Plantation, accompanied by Mrs. Myers, left to-day for Honolulu, where they will take the first steamer, for the coast. They will remain away until in December, during which time a visit will be made throughout California, and possibly a trip east.

It is reported that Shingle will hang around San Francisco until the arrival of Taft, when he expects to get in a word or so with the powers that be in behalf of his prospects for Congressional honors. He will also consult a Montana man in regard to possible appointment. It is rumored that a Wyoming man may be in the race to succeed Frear.

WAIMEA LANDING MADE DIFFICULT BY SWELLS

(Special to the Garden Island)

WAIMEA, Sept. 15.—As the result of heavy swells prevailing here to-day, one of the Kinau's shore boats was capsized and its contents, [60 bags of sugar] lost. Further loading has been abandoned until the water settles to a calmer state.

Several minor accidents have occurred which resulted in slight damage to the small boats.

MOROCCAN QUESTION IS WISELY DISCUSSED

Local Writer Tells Bit of Very Interesting European History - Morocco Is The Bone of Contention

THE "OPEN DOOR" BRITAIN'S POLICY

Gives Reasons For Strained Relations Between Great Britain and Germany - Former Won't Budge

Editor THE "GARDEN ISLAND"

Dear Sir—
The political eyes of Europe and the civilized world are at present centred on that unfortunate and barbaric home of Mohammedanism close to Europe—Morocco, where is being enacted one of those frequent "Comedies of Nations" which, whilst seeming to presage out-break of war, so often end—most fortunately—in a spluttering of specious compliments and windy assurances of mutual respect and good will, followed by 'necessary' (?) division of 'the bone of contention' between interested parties.

In a polyglot community such as these Islands hold, it goes without saying that diverse opinions as to the right and wrong of the burning question of which Morocco is the pivotal object to be entertained by the differing nationalities; and probably strong feelings will be aroused between the many members of the German and British races. It may therefore be opportune to venture some explanation of the reasons for the present strained relations between several European Powers, and more especially as the writer is actuated by the sole subject of encouraging and maintaining amicable feelings between subjects of the German and British Empires, and all other who are affiliated to either nation by blood descent. Of French men and Spaniards (European) resident in these Islands the numbers are so few they may be, without discourtesy, passed over.

What then is this question of Morocco which has brought Spain and France and Germany and Great Britain almost to the verge of war? Briefly stated it is the carrying out by France and Spain, especially the former power, with strict impartiality as between all the Signatories, the provisions of the Act of Algeiras (1905) in which the four powers instanced above were concerned.

Now the pith and marrow of the provisions of that Act was this, THE INTEGRITY OF MOROCCO, THE SOVEREIGNTY OF THE SULTAN, AND THE "OPEN DOOR." Previous to that, in 1904, there was an Anglo-French agreement, and also a Franco-Spanish agreement, but the feelings and interests of Germany were in no way consulted in either agreement. As a matter of fact her interests were trivial however great her feelings may have been. Great Britain was chiefly concerned for a free hand in Egypt, and France for a free hand in Morocco. Great Britain admitting the special interests of France in that country as French and Moroccan territory ran continuously.

But Great Britain was careful to stipulate for the 'open door,' and equality of trading opportunities for a term of years. That she was bound to have or sniffer much loss commercially, for almost one half the external trade of the Moroccan Empire is controlled by her. It is well known, however, that French promises are much like pie crust, as witness the non-existence of the promised 'open door' in Algiers and Madagascar.
